

Thursday June 28, 2007 8-12:30 pm
Clark Center Auditorium, Stanford University
Open to the public

What are the goals for carrying out neuroimaging studies of patients in limited states of consciousness? What unique issues are there in articulating these goals and obtaining informed consent for these studies? What are the critical issues for experimental design and reproducibility?

Ethics, Neuroimaging & Limited States of Consciousness

CHAIR

Judy Illes
Stanford University, USA

CO-CHAIR

Joseph J. Fins
Cornell University, USA

PUBLIC POLICY AND IMAGING: HISTORICAL CONSIDERATIONS

PLENARY ADDRESS

Albert R. Jonsen
University of Washington, USA

NEUROETHICS & NEUROIMAGING: MOVING TOWARDS TRANSPARENCY

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Joseph J. Fins
Cornell University, USA

PANELISTS

Martha J. Farah
University of Pennsylvania, USA
Steven Laureys
University of Liege, Belgium
William Winslade
University of Texas, Galveston, USA

CONSIDERATIONS FOR CLINICAL ETHICS

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

David Magnus
Stanford University, USA

PANELISTS

James L. Bernat
Dartmouth University, USA
Stephen J. Morse
University of Pennsylvania, USA
Joy Hirsch
Columbia University, USA

OTHER PARTICIPANTS

Vivian N. Chin, Stanford University, USA
Emmeline Edwards, National Institute of Neurological Disorders & Stroke, USA
Joseph T. Giacino, JFK Medical Center, USA
Maarten Lansberg, Stanford University, USA
Glenn McGee, State University of New York, Albany, USA
Emily R. Murphy, Stanford University, USA
Adrian Owen, Medical Research Council, UK
Eric Racine, Institut de Recherches Cliniques de Montreal, Montreal, Canada
Nicholas D. Schiff, Cornell University, USA
William C. Stubing, The Greenwall Foundation, USA
Christine Wijman, Stanford University, USA

SUPPORTED BY THE GREENWALL FOUNDATION AND NIH/NINDS #RO1 045831